Interior Design and Organization by Alison Thompson

Dallas Texas | Tyler Street United Methodist Church

Contemporary Worship Space

This Methodist church was ready to renovate their 60's era meeting hall into a contemporary worship space. We embraced the art deco clerestory windows, unique brick patterns, and vaulted ceilings. The photo shown is the newly installed interior garage door separating the break area from the main worship center.

The only thing the client wanted to keep from her dated kitchen was the light fixture shown. We made it the focal piece over the gioia quartz island and designed the rest of the kitchen around it. Our favorite part about a residential space is combining our love for organization and design all in one. We made a detailed plan of her kitchen items and designed the cabinets to fit each one!

Frisco Texas Residence Understairs Play Room

Three-year-old Marek just wanted to be where his mom was! She had tried playrooms upstairs and many other nooks of the house but he gravitated toward the kitchen where she preps and cooks. Luckily, there was an understairs closet near the kitchen that was perfect. His love of cars dictated our design vision along with his mom's need for as much toy storage as possible.

After living with relatives for two years, this family of five was excited to have their own space. The parents wanted to interact with the children as they cooked and their love of entertaining motivated the open floor plan. We love the clean and simple lines of the cabinetry with the unique round cut-outs for pulls.

Bathroom Renovation

The empty nesters that inhabit this home needed a master bathroom that would fit their needs as they age. We designed the facilities with accessible doorways, sink heights, and grab bar adaptable toilet and shower areas. As in the kitchen of the same home on page 3, we brought in the white shaker aesthetic with frameless shower glass and built-in storage.

Craft Room

When we suggested the polka dot wallcovering, this client said yes! Using The Container Store's Elfa system along with glass jars and boutique vases we embraced the client's love of color. Organizing the tissue and gift bags was pure joy and added to the overall excitement of the space.

The bookshelf with the painted tree at the back of the space was the client's when she was a little girl. She wanted it to be in a special spot for her growing son so he could experience that memory. We based the design of the space off of the bookshelf and his favorite superhero. We used items the client already owned along with a few new things to fit right within her desired budget.
